The aspiration of the young

The Master —, through Benjamin Creme, 8 April 2013

It will not surprise any intelligent reader to learn that, in Our estimation, the present chaotic economic and resultant social conditions will not last for very much longer. Nor do We see a sudden transformation and return to the mythical ‘status quo’. The peoples of the world, in millions, have begun to sense the aroma of freedom, and for little longer will be denied its boon. Across the world, most especially among the young, the potent desire for change is being given expression. The young want a new kind of world, a new structure which includes them and their aspirations. These aspirations are for justice and sharing, for meaningful work and an opportunity to raise their families in sufficiency and peace. For too long have they languished in poverty and obscurity, denied a say in their life’s endeavour.

From now on the governments of the world will have to consider seriously these aspirations of the hitherto silent majority, and change their plans accordingly. The ‘landed rich’ will find it difficult to maintain the dramatic gap between their way of life and that of the average ‘peasant’, as the cry for equality forces change. It will be understood that the present divisions in financial power are central to the instability of world finance.

The old order is collapsing and no government can halt this process. The new energies of Aquarius are waxing stronger, breaking asunder the old corrupt and decadent order. The young, and young at heart, are the first to register the appearance of this new aspiration for justice. The desire for right relationship wells up strongly in the hearts of the young.

Meanwhile Maitreya continues His progress among the nations, speaking freely of the need for justice, sharing and love. These ideas are finding many followers as the tension of today’s conditions makes its impact throughout the world. In the USA and Mexico, in Brazil and now in Russia, Maitreya places before His audiences the alternatives facing humanity: to continue on the present senseless and greedy path to oblivion or to see the world as one, on a journey to perfection, as brothers and sisters; to see that only sharing and justice will give us the peace we all desire and a world that prospers according to the Plan, and so find our way back to the Truth and Beauty we once knew and fostered.

The Masters’ role

The Master —, through Benjamin Creme, 9 March 2013

For many years, We, the Masters, have been preparing Ourselves for the time of Emergence, the time, now near, when We will, in group formation, live openly in the everyday world. For Some it will be an experience altogether new. Many, as Masters, have spent all Their time within the Hierarchy and must now learn to work in entirely new ways. Even the use of speech has to be learned and practised, since telepathy has long been the mode used by Us. At first, and for some considerable time, Our contact will have to be restricted to senior disciples in the various fields of work and to trained personnel involved in the practical fields of administration, especially in food distribution. Many Masters are specialists in administration, while Others engage more readily in teaching. The aim is to work as closely as possible in every field, and as soon as possible with the general public. It is important to emphasise that the Masters’ aim is to stimulate and guide humanity as needed, but to safeguard the essential freewill of men.

Gradually the location of the various Mystery Schools, preparatory and advanced, will become known and many thousands of striving disciples will gravitate to them. There they will receive the training for the first two initiations, and enter the Sanctuary of Hierarchy.

In the beginning We must expect some opposition to the Masters’ presence and ideas, but eventually, even the most diehard fundamentalist of any religion or creed will find it difficult to fault the harmlessness of man’s Elder Brothers.

In due course, the cities of the world will be beautified and transformed. The new Science of Light will transform industry and travel, and the movement of people will bring Unity to the world. People of all nations will work and team together in service to all. The advice of the Masters will be available, guiding men wisely with a gentle hand.

The presence of even a few Masters among them will have an electrifying effect on thousands of people anxious to serve the needs of the world, and the idea of service will become a new life aim for many. In this way it can be seen that an enormous transformation can be accomplished in a relatively very short period of time. A mass programme of aid to the poor will achieve miracles in countries in Africa and South America, for example. An altogether new sense of the need for haste to rectify the wrongs of the past will ensure an intensity of help unknown today. Inspired by Maitreya and His group, hundreds of thousands of men and women will find their vocation in this way.

We, the Masters, aim only to teach and guide, to show the way for men and protect them from harm. War in all its forms must become a thing of the past but the decision to make it so must be man’s alone. I repeat, Our task is to show the way, to outline the plans, but men alone must embrace each step of the way. Have no fear: all will be achieved. The life ahead for men could not be more bright.

Whither now?

The Master —, through Benjamin Creme, 9 May 2013

It is becoming more and more obvious that the economic systems of today no longer work. Too many, millions indeed, are excluded from the right to sufficient food to sustain life. The productive capacity of this planet is vast, but so inadequate and unequal are the means of distribution that millions suffer and die without cause. Men know this to be true yet little is done to remedy this crime.

Whither now? For how much longer must the poor suffer in this way? For how long can the nations support this iniquity before an immeasurable catastrophe engulfs the world?

As it is not strange that men have never sought to remedy this eternal, tragic situation where millions suffer and die from want in the midst of plenty? The simplest of solutions, it would seem, has never occurred to those who have abundant plenty. Why does not simple justice reveal the solution? That the rich must share the riches they control is not only sensible and just but essential for world peace and the benefit of all if the survival of all is to be assured.

Make no mistake, men must come to realise that sharing is not simply a good and just idea but is essential if mankind is to survive. Only wise and just sharing will bring the peace which all men desire. For without sharing trust would never arise.

Be assured that Maitreya Himself will tell men this simple truth and open their eyes to the benefits which will follow. Become one of His many workers who seek to establish the need for sharing and justice. Remember that no man is separate and alone, that all men, knowingly or not, are linked together with invisible ties in a long journey of succeeding revelation. Renounce the path of separation and aid your brothers and sisters on the way.
Japan plans world's largest wind farm

Officials for the Fukushima prefecture have announced plans for the world’s largest wind farm, 143 wind turbines, to be built off the coast of Fukushima. The turbines are to be positioned on platforms 10 miles off the coast. It is calculated these will generate 1 gigawatt of power, surpassing the 504 megawatts generated by the 140 turbines at Greater Gabbard farm off the coast of Suffolk, UK - currently the world’s largest wind farm. Fukushima prefecture has announced its intention to be completely energy self-sufficient using only renewables by 2040, and included in proposals are plans for the country’s biggest solar park.

Following the Fukushima disaster in 2011, Japan plans to move away from reliance on nuclear power and to massively increase renewable energy resources. (Source: UPI.com)

Japanese wins international peace prize

In April 2013 tens of thousands of people took to the streets in several cities in Colombia calling for peace between the government and the left-wing guerrilla movement Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC). In the Colombian capital, Bogotá, demonstrators wore white, played music, and chanted “We want peace.” They marched towards Plaza Bolivar where they were joined by President Juan Manuel Santos who called upon all Colombians to seize this opportunity: “All conditions are set. We need to unite all Colombians and put an end to the conflict... The nation is expressing its rejection of violence; violence that has caused so many wounds and so much pain.”

Victory for rainforest conservation

The third largest pulp and paper company in the world announced it would stop cutting down trees in Indonesia’s natural rain forests. The announcement represented a significant victory for rainforest conservation, and for environmental groups that have been pressuring the company for years to reform its practices and stop rainforest clearing. Asia Pulp and Paper, which controls logging rights for more than 6 million acres in Indonesia, said it would source all material from plantation-grown trees, protect forested peat land, which stores huge amounts of carbon, and work with indigenous communities to protect their land. The company has hired an environmental group called The Forest Trust, which helped negotiate the agreement, to independently monitor its operations. (Source: Washington Post; wri.org)

Lifescaver system

LIFESAVER is a UK based company providing innovative water filters worldwide. Michael Pritchard, a British inventor, developed the LIFESAVER bottle after seeing the problem of providing fresh water to disaster victims following the 2004 Tsunami and Hurricane Katrina. The water bottle he invented contains a very fine membrane which filters out deadly viruses and bacteria from the dirtiest water. All you do is scoop up the filthy water, pump it through the filter and you have instant clean and safe potable water. The bottle weighs 1.5 pounds and can filter one and a half pints of clean drinking water at a time. The filter can process 1,500 gallons of dirty water before it is replaced and will not process water once expired, avoiding the danger of drinking contaminated water.

LIFESAVER is used by the military in Afghanistan, and many international agencies including the Red Cross, Oxfam, MSF and Shelternow. Its products are sold in over 100 countries. In partnership with the Malaysian government it is providing remote villages with safe drinking water through the company’s latest high tech nano-filtration invention, the LIFESAVER MI, which will have lifted 1 million people out of water poverty by the end of 2013. The process of moving planeloads of water to disaster areas is difficult and costly. The UK Department for International Development has chosen the company to be part of the UK’s Rapid Response Facility for short-notice deployment of LIFESAVER technology to any future disaster.

In 2012, the LIFESAVER bottle became one of the 15 top British inventions included in the British Library’s exhibition ‘Inventing the 21st Century’ and in April 2013 was featured in BBC2’s “Tomorrow’s World”, a Horizon special. (Source: lifesaversystem.com)

Benjamin Creme answers

Q. Do you think that Hugo Chavez was the response to Maitreya that it will become less and less easy for the world to prevent these changes. So there will be friction but so powerful will be the response to Maitreya that it will become less and less easy for people to withstand the great surge of world public opinion.

Lifescaver system

LIFESAVER system is used by the British Library’s exhibition ‘Inventing the 21st Century’ and in April 2013 was featured in BBC2’s “Tomorrow’s World”, a Horizon special. (Source: lifesaversystem.com)

Benjamin Creme answers

Q. Do you think that Hugo Chavez was the response to Maitreya that it will become less and less easy for the world to prevent these changes. So there will be friction but so powerful will be the response to Maitreya that it will become less and less easy for people to withstand the great surge of world public opinion.

Lifescaver system

LIFESAVER is a UK based company providing innovative water filters worldwide. Michael Pritchard, a British inventor, developed the LIFESAVER bottle after seeing the problem of providing fresh water to disaster victims following the 2004 Tsunami and Hurricane Katrina. The water bottle he invented contains a very fine membrane which filters out deadly viruses and bacteria from the dirtiest water. All you do is scoop up the filthy water, pump it through the filter and you have instant clean and safe potable water. The bottle weighs 1.5 pounds and can filter one and a half pints of clean drinking water at a time. The filter can process 1,500 gallons of dirty water before it is replaced and will not process water once expired, avoiding the danger of drinking contaminated water.

LIFESAVER is used by the military in Afghanistan, and many international agencies including the Red Cross, Oxfam, MSF and Shelternow. Its products are sold in over 100 countries. In partnership with the Malaysian government it is providing remote villages with safe drinking water through the company’s latest high tech nano-filtration invention, the LIFESAVER MI, which will have lifted 1 million people out of water poverty by the end of 2013. The process of moving planeloads of water to disaster areas is difficult and costly. The UK Department for International Development has chosen the company to be part of the UK’s Rapid Response Facility for short-notice deployment of LIFESAVER technology to any future disaster.

In 2012, the LIFESAVER bottle became one of the 15 top British inventions included in the British Library’s exhibition ‘Inventing the 21st Century’ and in April 2013 was featured in BBC2’s “Tomorrow’s World”, a Horizon special. (Source: lifesaversystem.com)
Hindu statues ‘drink’ milk and water

In March 2013, reports started to appear in Guyana, Trinidad, Canada and New York of statues of Hindu deities ‘drinking’ milk or water. Several videos of the miracle statues can be seen on YouTube. (Sources: www.guardian.co.tt; www.guyanachronicleonline.com; YouTube: Avisinash Singh, Priya Devi Pitamber; staceeevy13; Anjalie Mangroo). Benjamin Creme’s Master confirms that these miracles were manifested by Maitreya. A previous manifestation of this miracle took place on a huge scale in September 1995. See Share International, November 1995.

Letters to the editor

Spiritual tuning
Dear Editor,
In 2009, one of my cousins gave me Benjamin Creme’s book Maitreya’s Mission Volume Two because she thought it could shed some light on a new Buddhist practice we had gotten into together. The book impressed me a lot but I preferred to label Benjamin Creme a kindly crackpot, as I myself claimed to be. As doubts became unbearable, and my faith in others sapped, I started wondering if what it said could be true. After that I went into the coffee shop everyone was amazed and nobody knew him. Was this man a Master? Perhaps Maitreya?

Food for thought
Dear Editor,
A few years ago, in 2006 or 2007, when I was a student, something curious happened to me. It was a rainy afternoon. After finishing my classes at university I was on my way to a coffee shop to meet a friend. On my way there I was getting wet, listening to Enya and was inundated with a kind of interior joy, to which I am not very prone. I live in Soria, Spain, a very small city where we all know each other and almost everyone goes to the same bars or coffee shops.

When I went into the coffee shop, there was a man sitting at the bar. His look was unduly, middle-aged, dressed in a jogging suit; his overall look was like a tramp. He was drinking something and as I entered, he stood up, as if he was waiting for me. He started telling me that life was a gift, that I had to smile more because life was marvellous, and other things of that kind. I didn’t smile a lot and very few times I realized I was meant to be happy. Could you tell me who this man was? Was it the Master Jesus?

Life change
Dear Editor,
I would like to think about an experience many years ago. I had a very unpleasant situation. I had been physically attacked and then blackmailed. I became very depressed and withdrawn, after some months I was beginning to lose my faith in my fellow man, I had to start all over again, but I’d wasted all this paper and would have to do the flyers and just made them plain with the needed information.

When I started printing the flyers out I noticed a mark on the paper. At first I was rather upset thinking I’d wasted all this paper and would have to start all over again, but looking closer I noticed in faded ink that it had printed diagonally from left to right, ‘Samen Delen en Red de Wereld’ (Share and Save the World).

I wonder, did I have help from Maitreya or a Master printing these flyers?

Pauline Dimnick, Belgium.

(Benjamin Creme’s Master confirms that the message on the flyers was manifested by the Master Jesus.)

Master printer
Dear Editor,
Our Transmission Meditation group in Westerlo, Belgium, will be showing on 2 June 2013 a DVD from one of Benjamin Creme’s lectures in Nagayo, Japan, in 2010. When it comes to computers and printers I just know the basics, I don’t know how to do fancy things. I was left to do the flyers and just made them plain with the needed information.

When I started printing the flyers out I noticed a mark on the paper. At first I was rather upset thinking I’d wasted all this paper and would have to start all over again, but looking closer I noticed in faded ink that it had printed diagonally from left to right, ‘Samen Delen en Red de Wereld’ (Share and Save the World).

I wonder, did I have help from Maitreya or a Master printing these flyers?

Local contact:

Photograph of Times Square was taken by a PR Newswire photographer.
Maitreya, as He appeared before thousands outside Nairobi in June 1988. He appears in various forms to different groups and individuals — but always in a form that inspires recognition.

A message of hope for mankind

In 1972, under His Master’s direction, he began a period of arduous and intensive training as a result of which his telepathic contact with His Master became, and remains, continuous and immediate. This relationship has given him access to constant up-to-date information on the progress of the emergence and the total conviction necessary to present that information to a sceptical world. Over the years his lecture tours have taken him to Western and Eastern Europe, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Mexico and the US. Creme’s books have been translated and published in numerous languages throughout the world by groups responding to his message. He is also co-editor of Share International, a monthly magazine circulating in 70 countries, extracts from which make up this newspaper, The Emergence Quarterly.

Creme receives no remuneration for this work and makes no claims about his own spiritual status. My task, Creme says, has been to make the initial approach to the public, to help create a climate of hope and expectancy into which Maitreya can emerge without infringing our freewill.